Shul Book Group Shabbos August 26, 2017

The Devil and Webster by Jean Hanff Korelits
From the New York Times bestselling author of You Should Have Known and Admission, a twisty new novel about a college president, a baffling student protest, and some of the most hot-button issues on today's college campuses.
Naomi Roth is the first female president of Webster College, a once conservative school now known for producing fired-up, progressive graduates. So Naomi isn't surprised or unduly alarmed when Webster students begin the fall semester with an outdoor encampment around "The Stump" - a traditional campus gathering place for generations of student activists - to protest a popular professor's denial of tenure. A former student radical herself, Naomi admires the protestors' passion, especially when her own daughter, Hannah, joins their ranks.
Then Omar Khayal, a charismatic Palestinian student with a devastating personal history, emerges as the group's leader, and the demonstration begins to consume Naomi's life, destabilizing Webster College from the inside out. As the crisis slips beyond her control, Naomi must take increasingly desperate measures to protect her friends, colleagues, and family from an unknowable adversary.
Touching on some of the most topical and controversial concerns at the heart of our society, this riveting novel examines the fragility that lies behind who we think we are-and what we think we believe.

Please make a reservation by notifying the Ner Tamid office. The cost is $7. Send your check directly to the Shul.

New Teen Coordinator - Zahava Klein

What is the best way to train to be the new Ner Tamid Teen Coordinator? Zahava Klein has grown up with shul in her blood. She was a member of her sisterhood when she was in high school. That is what happens when you are the Rabbi's daughter in a mid-sized shul with a diverse population. The Gustin family lives and breathes shul and Zahava Gustin was an active part of the team. She spent her youth at home or in shul, Congregation Yehuda Moshe in the Lincolnwood neighborhood in Chicago. Whenever there was a program, she was the unofficial youth director called on to "Do something for the kids".

The youth program did not end at home where she was the third child in a family of 10 siblings. Her family hosted Simchas Torah in the Park and an annual backyard Sukkos party. Congregation Yehuda Moshe was her family and her family was Congregation Yehuda Moshe. For example when they wanted to have a family Purim costume, they dressed up as the characters from Gilligan's Island and a senior couple were included as Mr. and Mrs. Howell.

She is ready for an adventure with her family for a trip or shabbaton. When she was young her father helped out another Chicago shul who needed a Shabbos Rabbi. The family slept in the shul and had one of the best weekends of their life.

She remembers a time when somebody important showed her that children deserve to be treated like adults. One of the members of Congregation Yehuda Moshe is a fundraiser for the Democratic Party. That shul member hosted a fundraising party for President Bill Clinton. Her parents attended the fundraiser and the children stayed home, not thinking too much about what the adults were doing. About an hour into the party, the phone rang in their home and a kind southern voice said "Hi kids. This is President Clinton. I'm glad to hear your voices. I'm having a good time with your parents. Bye now." She learned that children deserve respect and are people too. She plans to bring that philosophy to encourage tweens and teens to be excited about being in shul and to bring in their friends to build a larger youth community and connection to Ner Tamid.

When she was in a post high school seminary in Israel, Darchei Binah, she met another inspirational family, the Kurlands (Rabbi Kurland serves as the head of the school). The principal lived on Campus, which became her home away from home. Watching their involvement in the lives of their students and their desire to develop a connection with every person who walked through their front door, sparked the realization that she wanted to be able to do the same. She knew that she wanted to be involved in her community.

She met her husband at a YACHAD Shabbaton in Chicago. He was a last minute replacement for a staff member who had an emergency. They did not get the hint, so Hashem put them together for another YACHAD event. This time she met her future in-laws, brother-in-law Netanel (who is a Ner Tamid regular) and her future husband Ezri again. Again shul and working with others was a major part of making her who she is today.

The Klein family is Zahava, Ezri and their 2 sons, Shai (Yishaya Meyer) 3.5 years old and Shua (Yehoshua Asaf) 1.5 years old. She loves her life in Baltimore because of how friendly the people are, and we know that Ner Tamid is going to give her an extra special greeting. She is excited to be working at a shul, which reminds her of her childhood shul.

Zahava will be in shul this Shabbos to give us all a chance to get to know her, so please make sure to say hello! She will be starting in this new role in the next few weeks.
