A Note from our Youth Director, Morah Rachel Shar

In last week's Parsha, Lech Lecha, the Jewish people are compared to the stars in the sky and the sand in the sea. We read that we will be as numerous and vast and we take pleasure in knowing that each of us is G-d's very own star. Additionally, every star and piece of sand has its own composition and chemical make-up and uniqueness. At a glance, each grain of sand may look like a tiny speck of rock and each ball of gas may look simply like a flickering white light in the night sky.... But it's not. They're not... and like the stars and the sand, we too have our own special traits. Each child at Ner Tamid is special and unique. I am honored to get to be a part of their Jewish journey each week, as we have discussions about middot, parsha, and sometimes, life in general. I look to connect to each child as if each grain of sand, each tiny star is the most important one in the heavens or sea. And next month, we have the opportunity to welcome guests, a theme that is exemplified in this week's parsha, Vayeira, by our very own Avraham Avinu. We have the opportunity to co-host a Shabbaton with one of our very special partners, YACHAD of Baltimore. YACHAD is an organization that is dedicated to ensuring the inclusion of all Jewish individuals with disabilities and provides meaningful Jewish experiences for all of its participants. Each star and each grain of sand has its own uniqueness and so too, do we. However, while all have those unique differences, so too, do we all share many things in common. This is our chance to practice Hachnasat Orchim with our friends and neighbors in YACHAD. To find those commonalities... We all love to laugh, have fun and play games! We all love spending Shabbos with friends, surrounding ourselves with people who build us up and make us feel special. We can all sing together, bentch together, daven together. And although we are all each a tiny speck... together we are vast. Together we are awe inspiring. This is what we will be celebrating on November 10. The Shabbaton will be filled with fun activities, lots of food, friends and the making of memories together. Come be a part of it! I'll be there! Will you? (First Grade and Up. Sign up will be online.) Shabbat Shalom!
