THIS MONTH'S FOCUS: T'SHUVA (WEEK #3)

A Note from our Youth Director, Morah Rachel

Here we are, three weeks into our discussion about T'shuva, not coincidentally right after Rosh Hashanah and right before Yom Kippur. Today is a SPECIAL Shabbos. Last week, I had the pleasure of davening with several of you and one moment stands out. High Holiday Davening is different from Shabbos because we had several kids who come less frequently and some who we only see once a year. When we got to a prayer that was less familiar to some children (Yigdal) I suggested only doing a few versus. I was weary of making the new comers uncomfortable. But something almost magical happened. As we sang, the children who were comfortable with the prayer sang out loudly and with confidence, and those who were tentative at first latched on to the confidence of their peers and sang out (even if mumbling the words they were unsure of). In this moment, I got literal goosebumps. I felt the gates to Heaven open up for our prayers as the kids sang out. What changed? The children began to lead and depend on one another. They became a true community. It was beautiful.

This week in groups, we are focusing on T'shuvah – Change – in our relationships with one another. How do we interact with each other? Is it positive or negative? Do we influence one another in good or bad ways? And how does that change? This week, we'll look around at the people we spend time with and assess those relationships and if we can change anything about them in a positive way. Small things like leading rather than passively following. Standing up for others rather than going along with teasing. Giving rather than taking. As we approach Yom Kippur, my prayer for the children and all of us, is that we find those small moments where our relationships with one another elevate us, and use the momentum from that t'shuvah, that change, to help us do better and be our best selves, as the children did during Yigdal last week.

Kids: Check out your Middah Card for #TheGreatMiddahChallenge this week! As always, I am here for you. Have a challenge that's bugging you? In school? Shul? Home? Somewhere else? Know that I am here for you and just an e-mail away! E-mail me at youth@nertamid.net or FB message me to get in touch!

Have a fantastic week. May it be filled with only positive changes and may we all be inscribed in the book of life for a year of health, happiness and all the good stuff! Rachel Shar, Youth Director
