Meet Kenneth and Susan Besser!

How did you first hear about NT?
We checked out NT when we moved to Baltimore in 2005. We were fully frummed-up at that time and landed in Shomrei where Ken davened until we moved back to Memphis in 2008. When we moved back to Baltimore, we wanted to be wherever Rabbi Motzen was because he impressed us at our daughter’s wedding to a Baltimore boy Ephraim Rose.

What is your religious background?
Susan’s mother died when Susan was 8, so she was reared with almost no Jewish practice except her father made sure they had Friday night dinner where Susan lit candles, after which her little brother made kiddush and her little sister said Hamotzi. Not much more. Ken’s father was raised Orthodox in Little Rock, Arkansas, but their family moved to Natchez, Mississippi, which only had a temple. Ken’s mother, who was not Jewish, kept a kosher home for Ken’s dad by shipping meat and chicken down from Kipper’s Deli in Memphis. When it came time for Ken’s bar mitzvah, the rabbi in Natchez wouldn’t teach him to daven and lain, so Ken went to the Memphis Hebrew Academy for two and a half years and lived a shomer kashrus and shomer shabbos life in yeshiva. After his bar mitzvah, Ken was recalled back to a less observant life in Mississippi. When he graduated high school a year and a half early and then started his first business in Jackson, Mississippi. Ken didn’t know it, but his b’sheret, Susan, was going to medical school and singing in the temple choir in the same city. A nice lady named Shirley Webber fixed the couple of singles up into a single couple and the rest, is history. Seven years later, Ken and Susan moved to Nashville got makereved into Chabad for two years and then leaned closer to modern orthodoxy after moving back to Memphis. Since then, we have swung on a pendulum; sometimes on the “mo” side and other times on the “dern” side of modern orthodoxy. We have labels, however, and we much prefer to say, “All Jews are Jews; some just choose to observe more or less or different halachot than others.”

What do you do for a living? Susan practices family medicine. Ken practices lifecycle law, he helps people integrate their personal, work and legal spheres, from the cradle to the grave and before and beyond

Anything unusual you could tell us about yourselves?
When we married, we intended to never have children. Then, somehow, we ended up having six. Julius went to Israel for shana alef and got a Sarah, his wife, semicha, and our first grandchild in shana hey, vuv, and zayin and their second kid three years ago. Now he practices law with Ken in Memphis. Yitzchak just finished his first year of law school at UBalt Law. Gittel is a Master Social Worker who is married to a Phillie boy and they live in Bergenfield, New Jersey, where they are raising two daughters. Shmuel, skipped high school, graduated from Landers College at Touro, married a Staten Island shaitel macher and photographer, Danielle, and they have graced us with two more grandkids. Tzipporah lives and practices interior design and architecture in Baltimore and her husband, Ephraim is in home construction. Binyamin got a fire protection engineer degree from College Park, married a federal analyst, and they live in DC.

What part of NT are you most excited about getting involved?
Rabbi Motzen is the first rabbi who does not put Susan to sleep during his Shabbos drasha, so we are quite passionate about hearing him whenever we can. We catch his podcast as much as we can when we miss his talks. We are both looking forward to being more active in the Brotherhood and Sisterhood.
