Meet Morah Margalit Tiede!

Morah Margalit Tiede is a teacher in our Ner Tamid Montessori school and has been leading our Shabbos and Chag Tiny Tots program. She can be found every Shabbos morning telling stories, leading singing, teaching parsha and all of it with a smile. If you could not tell Margalit is an Israeli Yemenite, which make her rare in our very Ashkenaz city and neighborhood. Yemenites are not just like the Sephardi community we encounter in our shul and community. They have special foods, prayers and traditions. Margalit told us that she is an excellent cook (although her Sephardic husband does a lot of the cooking at home). When she lived in Seattle she was in charge of the kosher food at Quality Food Centers (QFC) a supermarket chain on the west coast. She not only managed the food, she also supervised that it was kosher.

But we need to step back to give you more background. Margalit grew up on Mosav Yishi outside of Jerusalem and near Beit Shemesh. Yishi is a small moshav founded just after the State of Israel. It was mostly Yemenites, although today with about 600 people it is more diverse. When she graduated high school she spent 2 years in the IDF. She was in the military police in Jerusalem, but she did not like it because she did not enjoy getting fellow young soldiers in trouble. Her commander did not like her and one time was so angry that he chased her around the base. She was too fast for him and he was embarrassed by this very sassy young lady. To get her out of his hair he sent her to motorcycle training.

She became one of the first 5 female motorcycle military police. She was reassigned to Tel Aviv and had quite an interesting experience. There were times where she had to drive on a motor cycle from Tel Aviv to Eilat. She also led the motorcade for President Yitzhak Navon. As well she was part of the motorcade for Golda Meir’s funeral. After the military she became the first civilian motorcycle police officer in Israel. She was stationed in Jerusalem, and was interviewed for Galei Zahal radio (Israeli military radio) and her picture has been in education materials for motor cycle police. It is interesting that her distinct hair fit in her helmet. She would typically ride her motorcycle down Kvish Echad (Highway 1) from Jerusalem to her home in Yishi. Ask her about the match story and how she met her husband Yoni and her 2 children. She has many great stories to tell.
